Judge's comments: “This front page is visually arresting and conceptually strong, using a single, bold image to frame a forward-looking campus story. The blue-toned photograph of a raised hand immediately captures attention and functions as an effective visual metaphor for innovation, technology, and environmental engagement. Paired with a clear, forward-focused headline, the design signals relevance and ambition without overwhelming the reader.

The layout is clean and confident. The masthead is prominent and authoritative, while the generous use of negative space allows the central image to command the page. Color choices are disciplined and purposeful, reinforcing the theme while maintaining readability and polish.

Overall, this front page reflects a newsroom willing to think visually and conceptually while remaining rooted in strong editorial judgment.”
